Pompidou racing clock to ease chaotic nation

PARIS (AP) — Premier Georges Pompidou, union leaders and employers began a new round of talks Sunday night to break the hold of a 10-day-old national strike, but key union officials said a quick break in the deadlock was doubtful. One labor leader, a Communist, called on workers to "reinforce the strike."

Andre Alterre, president of the General Confederation of Supervisory Employees, said, "It appears to be out of the question that an agreement can be reached tonight."

Although there were indications of accord on at least one money issue, Pompidou was forced to work against the clock. French students have called for a 24-hour national demonstration Monday in defiance of a government edict suspending the right of assembly.

The appeal for the "reinforced" strike came from Georges Seguy, leader of the General Confederation of Labor.

Pompidou's tactic, obviously, was to isolate the workers from the students, leaving settlement of the student agitation for university reforms until later.

How much later was not clear. A union leader said: "This conversation is like a chest of drawers. They open a drawer and don't close it. They open another and it's not closed either. They want to open a third and it's stuck. Things are not moving ahead."

The priority given to labor appeared to bear fruit later in the day when the Communist party urged followers not to take part in student demonstrations. It said "new provocations" could hurt chances of achieving Communist economic and political goals.

The National Union of French Students—UNEF—called the national demonstration to protest what it called "police provocations," which it said were responsible for bloody rioting.

Pompidou Saturday announced suspension of the right of assembly. He said he had ordered police to break up "with the greatest energy" all public gatherings of demonstrators.

Sunday, six of France's top professors, including two Nobel prize-winners, accused Pompidou of threatening "the student movement with brutal liquidation."

Crystal ball cloudy in Oregon primary, Nixon faces opposition

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The outlook for the Democratic contenders remains cloudy in Tuesday's Oregon primary, with most opinion polls inconclusive. On the Republican side, however, the only question appears to be the size of Richard M. Nixon's victory.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., are matched in this, third meeting in cross-country primary contests.

Meanwhile, former vice president Nixon is running into opposition from what he said is an interview is plainly a "Stop Nixon" combination by supporters of Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

The outcome is anybody's educated guess. Kennedy and McCarthy seem to be running tandem, and Nixon looks like a winner—but possibly by a considerable reduced margin under his previous walkaways in four previous primaries. He had no really serious opposition in those contests.

The consensus on the impact of Tuesday's voting was this:

—To keep his presidential drive going at top speed, Kennedy must defeat McCarthy convincingly. He also must fend off an AFL-CIO inspired drive for President Johnson, a non-candidate whose name is on the ballot.

In a switch of roles, Johnson has become something of a stand-in for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, whose off-track activities in picking up convention delegates worry Kennedy much more than the ballot-box threat of McCarthy.

A McCarthy victory in Oregon —not nearly the long shot it was in the Indiana and Nebraska primaries—could fracture the Kennedy image as a winner. It could make it more difficult to administer the making to McCarthy in the June 4 California primary that Kennedy advisers now are confident is on schedule.

However, anything short of a majority of the Oregon Democratic vote would be embarrassing to Kennedy, if not necessarily fatal. The New York senator, who had been cheered by earlier polls showing him in a substantial lead, has had second thoughts about the outcome.

Nixon faces the first really threatening challenge from the combination of Rockefeller and Reagan, which would have to furnish the foundation for any successful move to deny him the nomination at the August party convention.

As for Reagan, Nixon thought that the California governor would have to rack up more than the 22 per cent of the vote he got in Nebraska to keep his position as a potential contender for the nomination.

Oregon is classified as a swing state in which the margin of 546,446 Democratic registration over the 428,975 Republicans signed up may not be indicative of how the voters turn out.

Bombing halt will be costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newly designated chief of the Air Force in Vietnam said Sunday a total halt in the bombing of Communist supply routes through North Vietnam "would be pretty costly to us."

Lt. Gen. George S. Brown indicated he would be against such total cessation of bombing, even while upholding any U.S. government decision to put such a halt into effect.

"I wouldn't oppose it as commander of the 7th Air Force," Brown said. "But I'd have some personal thoughts on the matter."

Peace talks resume with new U.S. ideas

PARIS (AP) — U.S. envoys expect to present some new ideas to the North Vietnamese when the Vietnam talks resume Monday, but few foresee any break in the deadlock. After the session, Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance will fly to Washington to report to President Johnson, a U.S. spokesman reported.

The fifth meeting is scheduled to get under way Monday morning with U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy leading their delegations into the International Conference Center in the heart of Paris.

Vance is deputy to Harriman. U.S. officials said his return to Washington was not timed because of expectation of any unusual development. On the contrary, they said, the talks are expected to move slowly for more sessions ahead.

Harriman, these officials recalled, had said when he arrived here a little more than two weeks ago that he or Vance would go back to Washington from time to time to report. Vance's will be the first such trip. He is expected to travel by military plane, but officials said his schedule was not yet complete.

Despite any "new ideas" the scenario at the meeting seems likely to be much the same as in the previous four sessions.

The American delegation is taking what comfort it can from the knowledge that negotiations with Communists run to a pattern. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the chief U.S. negotiator, has had personal experience in dealing with Communists and is aware of their almost limitless capacity for patience. From the Communist viewpoint, these talks are still only in their first stage, a stage which itself can last a long time. This is the phase of laying down maximum demands, turning aside any thought of compromise and showering their antagonist with invective. It is not dialogue at this stage, but a process of talking over the head of the other side, directly to world opinion, with the aim of bringing pressure to bear.

The second and final stage, if it ever arrives, will be the one in which the Communist side agrees to businesslike dialogue which permits actual bargaining.

As the talks go into their third week, the Americans have no doubt that the North Vietnamese side will repeat once again its basic demand: that the United States unconditionally must end all acts of war.

60 persons stranded in damaged skyride

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Broadway show tunes and high school pep yells wafted down from nervous youngsters and a few equally troubled adults trapped high in disabled cable cars.

Some were stranded for nine hours in the amusement park skyride before they were brought down early Sunday, shaky and fatigued, some frightened, but many bold to the last. "Nobody was scared," said Jerry Mills, 14, of Ripley, Miss., who was attending a picnic with school mates. "It just stopped on us and there we were."

Tornado velocity winds struck Saturday afternoon and popped the cable off a tower pulley. Automatic safety devices then clamped the cable to a halt.

Some 60 passengers in 25 tiny gondolas were stranded, but firemen working from aerial ladder trucks brought down all but about 20 who were stalled over the fingers of a lake. They remained through the black night until the machine was repaired.

"I didn't get scared at all until it started raining," said Julie Mitchell, 14, of McMoresville, Tenn. "Then I did."

The stranded riders resorted to varied efforts to keep up their spirits. Songs were sung, prayers were said and school teams were cheered on to victory in advance of the fall football season.

"We sang songs from just about every Broadway musical there is," said Gary Darling, 22, of Memphis.

"I told them to all get on their knees and pray," said Bobbie Jean West, 11, of Memphis.

"We were a little bit scared and pretty cold, but we just went to sleep for a little while," said William McCray, 14, in the last group rescued.

Sheriff's Capt. Phil Cottam scaled a tower and inched his way out to push a blanket into one car. A little girl asked, "Are you going to get us down?"

"We sure are, sweetie," Cottam replied. The child eyed the route of Cottam's perilous climb and responded, "Not that way, you're not."

Barney Butler, a Memphis school official, commanded a boat and patrolled under the gondolas stuck above the lake. Finally, about 1 a.m., the cable was repaired and the cars brought in one-by-one. The children were wrapped in blankets, given hot soup and reunited with their parents.

Only three were hospitalized for treatment of shock.

Stepping off the last car, Stanley Parker, 13, declared:

"Oh, I thought they'd get us down."

Poor people set an active week

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekend of baking hot sun fried mud-swamped Resurrection City almost back to normal Sunday, as the Poor People's Campaign leader announced stepped-up demonstrations for the coming week.

"We hope to move full swing into nonviolent activities," The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy said.

"Now civil disobedience, of course, would come as a last resort. It may be that we will have to resort to civil disobedience. We certainly hope that this will not become necessary, at all."

Abernathy said he hopes Congress, before it adjourns, will "come forth with massive appropriations to deal with the whole question of poverty in this country."

If it doesn't, he said, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference may find it necessary to break its traditional non-partisan position and endorse a presidential candidate "if we can find one that will come forth with a real program to deal with poverty in this richest nation in the history of all mankind."

This view contrasted with the answer given at a news conference Saturday.

Asked then if SCLC plans to endorse a candidate, Abernathy referred the question to one of his aides. The Rev. James Bevel, who told reporters, "Our policy is pretty consistent with the past. We are concerned with the issues. We feel that electing presidents, which has been going on for the past 300 years, is not a way of solving our problems."

Abernathy was interviewed Sunday on ABC's television-radio program "Issues and Answers."

Many people set pails and dishpans outside their front doors to wash clothes of the red mud that coated nearly everyone by the end of the week, and clotheslines stretched between plywood huts sagged under the load.

The SCLC president said organizers are continuing to expel people from the plywood shanty city that stretches along the Reflecting Pool near the Lincoln Memorial if they do not prove "nonviolent in their spirits and in their attitudes."

Two heart transplants performed In Brazil In Virginia

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A team of 41 specialists simultaneously transplanted the heart and a kidney of a young automobile accident victim into two different patients Sunday. Both patients were reported in good condition after their operations.

The heart transplant at Sao Paulo's Hospital das Clinicas, was the first performed in Latin America and the 17th performed in the world. Six other men in the United States, France, England and South Africa are living with grafted hearts.

Performing the heart operation was Dr. Eurycles de Jesus Zerhlini. Surgery began at 6:30 a.m. and ended at 9:30 a.m. Chief Nurse Clarice Ferrarini said there were no complications.

The operations were announced by Dr. Geraldo Ferreira, the hospital director.

"We are very proud and happy," he said. "Everything indicates that both operations were successful."

The kidney transplant team was headed by Dr. Geraldo Campos Freire. He reported the transplanted kidney began functioning perfectly three minutes after the operation.

Informants reported the recipient of the heart is Joao Ferreira da Cunha, a 23-year-old laborer from Mato Grosso state. The hospital identified the patient only by initials, J.F.C.

The donor was said to be a young man, between 20 and 30, injured fatally in an automobile accident. "Everything was done to save him, but all efforts failed," Ferreira said.

The kidney recipient was identified only as a young woman with the initials M.F.L.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A heart transplant was completed at the Medical College of Virginia here Saturday night, and the patient was reported to be in satisfactory condition Sunday.

The news of the Virginia operation came in a terse statement issued about 8 p.m. Saturday which said "there will be no further bulletin issued" until later this week.

There was no official word on the name of the recipient or the donor. But late Saturday night, the patient was identified by unofficial sources as Joseph G. Klett, 34, of Orange, Va., a former purchasing agent for a metal products company.

A hospital source who declined to be identified said the patient was awake within two hours after the operation was completed and quoted doctors as saying the prognosis was good.

Klett had been hospitalized about a month—twice at Charlottesville, Va., and later at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital.

Sources at the hospital indicated Dr. Richard R. Lower, chairman of MCV's division of cardiac and thoracic surgery, and Dr. David M. Hume, chairman of the department of surgery, headed the surgical team.

Dr. Lower began research with heart transplant feasibility with dogs while working with Dr. Norman E. Shumway at the Stanford Medical Center in California. Dr. Shumway has performed two transplants.

Dr. Hume was a pioneer in kidney transplants. The medical college surgeons have conducted kidney transplants since 1962.

Columnist Welch dies

SEATTLE (AP) — C. Douglas Welch, nationally syndicated humor columnist who wrote under the name Doug Welch, died Sunday at his home where he was recuperating from a recent major operation. He was 61.

Welch had been a member of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer staff for many years. His column was syndicated by King Features Syndicate.

He was seated at his typewriter when he slumped over, and was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Allied forces reportedly killed almost 200 Communist troops over the weekend in bitter fighting that raged from inside Saigon to near the Demilitarized zone. The heaviest fighting took place near the Dong Ha supply base, about 10 miles south of the DMZ, where U.S. and South Vietnamese troops hurled back North Vietnamese thrust, reportedly killing 255 enemy soldiers in two separate battles. Race tension shuts school in Wilkinsburg WILKINSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Racial tensions rubbed raw by clashes between police, Negroes and whites have forced the cancellation of classes this week at Wilkinsburg High School.

Students will be permitted to take final exams at the high school, which is about 20 per cent Negro. The junior high school and elementary schools are to remain open.

"Whatever is done the following week will depend upon developments," said the statement.

Catholics criticize bombing

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnamese Roman Catholics have issued a statement charging that U.S. bombings have demolished or damaged 437 churches in North Vietnam since the air raids began in 1964, the Vietnam News Agency reported Sunday.

Hanoi's official news agency said four clergymen including one vicar-general were killed, two others were wounded and "many monks and nuns also perished."

The statement was issued by the National Liaison Committee of the Vietnamese patriotic and peace-loving Catholics, the agency added. It said the statement called on Catholics and religious organizations in the world to "severely condemn these heinous crimes of U.S. imperialists."

It claimed that on May 17, U.S. planes bombed the Xa Doai diocese in Nghe An province, killing three Catholics, including a nun, and wounding 19 others, including Vicar Nguyen Dinh Nhon and 14 nuns.

Nghe An is partially below the 19th Parallel, north of which U.S. planes no longer fly by order of President Johnson.

Rockets hit American outposts

Vietnamese troops inflict losses

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese ground troops fought out of one ambush and through six other engagements in the central highlands and northern provinces over the weekend, killing what the allied command said were 500 North Vietnamese regulars — troops that Hanoi denies are in battle.

The fighting swelled Sunday night with relentless mortar and rocket attacks on American outposts in the central highlands. The North Vietnamese smashed through the perimeters of two fire support bases before being driven back, sources at 4th Division headquarters in Pleiku said.

There was concern for a U.S. base called Brillo Pad, about 18 miles west of Kontum. In 18 hours of steady shelling, it had taken more than 200 rocket and mortar rounds.

The increasing enemy pressure was believed part of a major offensive aimed at capturing a large chunk of area of South Vietnam along the Laotian-Cambodian border, where U.S. intelligence sources estimate 28,000 North Vietnamese are encamped.

Total U.S. casualties in the six engagements from the demilitarized zone southward were put at 29 killed and 80 wounded. American troops were reported to have escaped without loss of life from a North Vietnamese ambush of an ammunition convoy that blew one explosive truck to shreds outside Kontum.

U.S. spokesmen reported that U.S. helicopter gunships and artillery broke up the attack and killed 15 enemy.

While most of Saigon rested Sunday, fighting went on at the capital's fringes. U.S. jet fighter bombers dove into the southern suburbs after the South Vietnamese command reported a battalion of Viet Cong, about 200 men, had hidden out in a village. Across town, South Vietnamese marines had surrounded a unit of North Vietnamese regulars.

The North Vietnamese were holed up in two densely populated northern suburbs of the capital, AP correspondent John T. Wheeler reported from the Gia Dinh area.

Officers told Wheeler that the North Vietnamese appeared to be without local guides and that several had wandered into government traps. Six were captured. All were well fed, had fresh haircuts, but claimed to have been in Saigon or nearby for two months.

U.S. headquarters in Saigon said 103 North Vietnamese soldiers and 16 Marines were killed in the fight and 33 Marines wounded.

The 4H gathering, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., played games, sang songs. Both progressive and relay games were played. Cookies and punch were served by older 4H members.

Teams under the leadership of team leaders competed in a variety of games of skill, relays and musical chairs. Eric Jensen of Stroudsburg R.D. 4 and Soni Melnikoff of Canadensis were masters of ceremonies for the event.

Local delegates attend Moravian conference

NEWFOUNDLAND — Miss Cora Lange, Newfoundland, and Miss Dorothy Heberling, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana, will attend the conference, with the proportion three lay delegates to each minister for a total of nearly 300 persons.

Delegates will be housed in the dormitories of Moravian college, on the north campus.

Plenary sessions will be held in Prosser Auditorium in the College Union Building, and other meetings will be held in various rooms on the north campus. The sessions continue over the weekend and close on June 24 in the early afternoon.

The principal speaker at the conference will be Dr. Wallace E. Fisher, senior pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity in Lancaster. He will speak three times, pointing out the possibilities in the program of the denomination to be launched this fall, "The Moravian Church in Action."

Developers, builders seek Delaware land rule change

DINGMANS FERRY — About 50 persons gathered in the Delaware Township firehall Friday night for a public hearing on a subdivision ordinance proposed by the township supervisors.

Ten persons, nearly all of whom represented land developers and builders, testified. All of them expressed desire to see a subdivision ordinance in the township but most of them also expressed dissatisfaction with sections of ordinance 18 currently under consideration.

Among the sections of the ordinance criticized were: the regulations on road construction and engineering requirements; sidewalk construction; filling plans and potential delay in procuring plan approval were also ordinance items on which dissatisfaction was expressed.

Objections cited

Mrs. Marian Wyckoff, in a well detailed presentation which she read, cited a number of sections of the subdivision regulations which she felt were adverse to the welfare of the small developer. A large developer, All American Realty Co., was represented at the hearing by attorney Robert Sigal and engineer Robert Pinder.

The two men stated a number of objections to the proposed ordinance beginning with an incorrect date in the notice for the hearing. Pinder requested that the members of the township planning board answer questions in regard to the ordinance and was informed by the township solicitor John Finan that this was not the purpose of the hearing.

The two men exchanged words each time Pinder appeared at the microphone which was on several occasions. Following one exchange, Finan noted "this is a regular situation and a cause of the breakdown of communications."

Compromise sought

Thomas Rosella, president of the All American Construction Co., expressed the hope that "this can be worked out between the realtors and the township."

One resident, Harold Arnold, who also criticized the ordinance, closed the hearing on a conciliatory note when he said, referring to supervisors, "this is a fine group of men and they are trying to work on a plan for the township."

Romaine Whittaker, chairman of the board of supervisors, in closing the meeting, stated that the recording of the testimony of the meeting would be studied by the planning board and the supervisors and given the highest consideration.

Other township officers present included supervisors Ira Jagger and William Reser, secretary Raymond Angle and planning commission members Arthur Ogden, John Paladino and John Edrancy.

The ordinance is currently scheduled for a final vote by the supervisors on June 6.

CANADENSIS — Not only are there licenses for blasting, but there are in all seven categories of licenses which limit what they may blast and where they may carry out their work.

Lawrence Hay, whose home is on Route 447 between Canadensis and Newfoundland, is an "A-1" blaster. An "A" or "A-1" blaster may operate practically any place and under most circumstances, while only limited operations may be conducted by the other categories: construction, pole line work, mining, quarrying, and trenching.

Of course, this is illuminating news to those devotees of television and the silver screen who have seen cowboys dash off on horseback or afoot, dynamite in hand.

Unlike a cowboy

The guys in the white hats, the baddies in the black hats, the persecuted ranchowner, the spy, the traitor, even the kid next door always seem to have an unlimited supply of dynamite and the "license" to use it to blow up the mine, to close the pass, or to bring down the sheer face of rock in the box canyon.

The picturesque uses of dynamite notwithstanding, the real story of splitting rocks in the Pocono Mountains where, if rocks were gold, every resident would be wealthy, is quite different.

Like a kid with a new toy, Lawrence Hay carries around with him an ingenious tool that is unique and very effective.

It is a rock splitter that is easy to carry, and a very useful tool to a man faced with a towering boulder or a stubborn rock located near a gas or water main, or snuggling up against a building.

The real story

Hay tells it like this: "You have this boulder to split, and you can't blow things sky-high. This drill drills a hole only one and five-sixteenths inches in diameter. Then the hydraulic-operated tool is inserted and it exerts a pressure of from 210 to 440 tons. Presto! the rock is cracked. No backbreaking work, no flying objects... all in seconds."

Perfectly in Switzerland, Hay's rock splitter has only one disadvantage. It just doesn't give that ear-splitting, window-shattering "whoom!" that you get when you dynamite... no sidishow of unleashed power. It just does the job silently and effectively.

The local man has worked with rocks - and loved every minute of it for 35 years. He builds with them, digs them up, moves them over, and blows them apart. And he chops them up in little pieces when the occasion demands.

And the Department of Labor and Industry has bestowed their printed blessing on his handling of one of the Pocono Mountains' largest crops, licensing him to detonate or dispose of boulders at his discretion.

GRAVE DECORATIONS FOR BEAUTY

Cutting and trimming grass is one of the largest and most costly maintenance activities in a Cemetery. The use of artificial flowers and wreaths on graves greatly hinders the grass cutting and increases its cost.

A. In order that our entire Cemetery may always present as neat and orderly appearance as possible it is requested that flowers be placed on graves only in approved containers.

B. Artificial flowers, imitation plants, ribbons, styrofoam designs and similar decorations are not permitted during the mowing season, May 1st to November 15th. Articles made of concrete — urns, benches, boxes, etc., are not permitted, as such articles on lots greatly add to costs.

C. The placing of boxes, shells, toys, metal designs, ornaments, chairs, vases glass, wood or iron cases, glass and plastic blocks, artificial animals, tin cans, crockery, waste baskets, pails, cardboard cartons, etc., shall not be permitted.

D. Winter decorations, such as natural and artificial wreaths, placed on easels, will be permitted from November 15th to May 1st.

E. Natural flowers will be permitted at any time, and will be removed when wilted. Potted plants will be permitted upon graves only at Easter, Mother's Day, and Memorial Day, and will be removed within 10 days.

F. Removed items of value may be claimed at Cemetery work shed. Your assistance in helping us to keep the Cemetery beautiful will be greatly appreciated.

Modern miracle has occurred

The impossible has happened. That which they said would never occur again has occurred.

Pleasant Valley School District has cut its real estate millage from 44 to 42 in an era when reducing taxes has become a forgotten art.

The reduction came despite a record budget of $950,515 for the 1968-1969 school term. This mark is $148,203 above the previous record budget of $811,312.

Pleasant Valley was able to reduce its real estate millage because the one per cent earned income tax netted the school district $46,000 during the past year.

The board decided to retain its five-dollar per capita tax under Act 511 and enacted the five-dollar per capita tax under Act 679 as a continuing tax. The board also decided to retain the one per cent earned income tax.

The reduction of two mills is no great amount of money, but it does show a desire to keep taxes in line by the school board. It makes known a close check on the budget and even more important reveals the importance of the one per cent earned income tax.

It is quite possible that the one per cent income tax could actually lower the tax bite on the property owner in other school districts in this region.

The strong point of the one per cent earned income tax is that it catches up with everyone, while other forms of taxation often go unpaid for lengthy periods of time by individual residents of the taxation area.

But, we have seen a miracle in this time of raising prices and taxation that has set the sky as the limit.

Let's hope this is the first break in the taxation increase and that the spiral may come to a halt.

Fowler's stand

As Secretary of the Treasury, Henry H. Fowler has intimate knowledge of where the fat lies in the Administration's budget. His endorsement of a six-billion-dollar cut in that budget—in testimony before the Senate Finance Committee—gives a timely lift to the bipartisan Congressional bloc that has fought hard, against heavy odds, to crack down on wasteful spending in the Federal establishment.

A Senate-House conference committee has approved a bill that would combine a six-billion-dollar spending reduction with a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes. The Administration has been trying to get the tax increase without trimming more than four billion dollars from proposed spending.

The argument that substantial cuts in the budget will adversely affect anti-poverty programs is pure eyewash. The budget sent to Congress is bloated with nonessentials. It is the creation of an entrenched bureaucracy where the prevailing rule of survival is to keep one's place at the public trough at any cost.

As for anti-poverty funds, this country could take meaningful steps to help poor people here at home if some of the billions of dollars scattered in foreign aid all over the world were diverted to domestic use, and if Uncle Sam started collecting debts owed to America by foreign loan recipients and devoted this money to helping the needy in the United States.

The budget can be cut by at least six billion dollars. Congress can take Treasury Secretary Fowler's word for it.

With Gene Brown

Before going to work in the morning I have been jogging around the house for 15 minutes which was extremely boring till I hit on the idea of carrying a picket sign at the same time.

Feel much better now that I am protesting.

The following observation appeared in the March issue of "The Apostle," the immaculate H.S. paper:

"I.H.S. must have extremely sensible students — we don't have half as many problems with the dress code as other schools do."

SOMETHING FOR THE HOUSE!

One payday, a husband came home intoxicated and announced he was broke.

"What did you spend it for?" screamed his wife.
"Bought something for the house," exclaimed hubby.
Oh, yeah — didn't see you bring in anything. What did you buy?
"Twelve rounds of drinks!"

Insoluble problem

Heat shimmered off the Sunset Strip and the big girl on the Sahara billboard shivered in her cowboy hat. I saw Don a block away. He walked smartly, a tall elegant actor who could carry a gold-headed cane and mocha gloves without looking like a fop. It was hot that day, but Don disciplined his body so that it would not perspire.

He was surprised to see me. Standing next to him, I looked like a gray sack of rocks. Coffee was in order; it couldn't be as hot as the sun. We sat in a drugstore and spoke of other days. There is a way of talking on the outskirts of a topic. His was alcohol.

Along the front edges of the dark wavy hair he had some burned out grass. The skin around the eyes displayed tick-tack-toe games. He had been a $500-a-week man when the casting directors beckoned. Every movie-goer with fast reflexes knew the face but not the name. There had been some years when the casting directors didn't want to know him. "I got married," he said, almost too casually. I said "No." He withdrew a thin flat pin-seal wallet from his silk jacket. She had the moody face of a petulant child. The skin was Nordic; the hair was pale blonde. The blue eyes were no deeper than an inch of rain. The nose was a shiny button. The mouth pouted for more of something.

"Beautiful," I said. He nodded. "She is. Thelma has become my life." He was serious. "Third time?" I said, kidding. "Fourth?" Dor shrugged and sipped the steaming coffee. "Three were mistakes," he said. "I didn't know it then. Each was a two-way blunder." "But this one," I said.

"For real," he said. "Forever. How long you going to be in town?" "Flying east tonight." "Ah," he said, "too bad." We had known each other for years, and we always said: "Next time for sure." He spoke of Thelma as an artist might speak of his favorite painting. She was 20; he was 46. She was, I would guess, his mother too.

She knew what was good for him; what he shouldn't do. Thelma had been an extra in motion pictures, but he had put in a good word here and there and she was now permitted to speak a line or two. In the mornings, she showered the sugar on his corn flakes; at night, she turned the television set off and tucked Don in.

Debt never paid

WASHINGTON — While we may never get through paying for the war in Vietnam in terms of money and pride, it does seem to me that we ought to be able to tidy up any bills left over from the Revolutionary War.

But there is an amount of some $80,000 owed to Mrs. William Horner, who runs television repair shop and who lives in a trailer park in Capistrano Beach, Calif. One of half direct ancestors, John Ross, a prominent Philadelphia merchant, lent the Continental Congress about 19,000 pounds sterling in 1775 and never got it back. (The pound at the time was worth $4.44.)

In 1796 Ross lost 13 ships and cargoes to the French during a French-English conflict. The United States and France agreed to compensate damaged shippers, but our government appropriated only $3 million to satisfy $6 million in claims and Ross was left out again. Ross could hardly have done worse if the American side had lost the Revolution.

Back in 1935 the Federal government acknowledged Mrs. Horner's descent from Ross by paying her $1,800 on the last-ships account. But she hasn't gotten a quarter since and she's appealed to her Congressman, James B. Utt (R., Calif.). He's introduced a special bill which would award her the original $86,000 which her ancestor advanced Congress to get this country started.

"I beat the booze," he said. This was the subject we planned to avoid. "I knew you would," I said, and this was my second lie. He admitted that he had been in a bad way. He had holed up in a furnished room away out on Melrose and tried to drink himself through the floor.

"No one beats it," he said, apologetically. "What I mean is, I have learned to live with myself." He had been a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and they had a big place in Los Angeles, replete with palm trees, games and a soft drink bar. Don sobered and began to fly rightside up. He became so enamored of the subject of alcoholism that he went on to a psychiatrist who specialized in it.

From there, he had enrolled in a college and majored in abnormal psychology at night. I was impressed. "No one beats it," he said. "I'm still the same alcoholic, but I no longer crave the stuff." "How long?" I said. Most alcoholics can tell you exactly how long. He figured on his fingers. "Six years thereabouts."

One circumstance

I was interested. "Under what circumstances would you return to liquor?" I said. It was a bad question. He frowned at what was left of the coffee in the bottom of the cup. A big sigh came out. "I would say that if, I faced an insoluble problem," he said, "You know, something that hurt bad and couldn't be straightened out." "Like losing a leg," I said. He shook his head. "No," he said. "I could learn to live with it."

When I got home he sent a note and told me that he had spent the evening explaining me to his love, his life, his Thelma. He had even told her about the insoluble problem. Candy face was, I would guess,

A year later there was a paragraph in the associated press that Don had died. He had been found by a cleaning woman on his living room rug. A bottle was in his hand. The neck had been smashed off. Slivers of glass in his stomach induced leaks.

That was a few years ago. Last autumn my wife and I were introduced to Thelma. She is now married to a young motorcycle actor. It was too bad about Don, she said. She told him that he was too old for her, that she really loved the boy with the boots and the sunglasses. An insoluble problem.

The perfect murder...

And do you know what the House Judiciary Committee has told Utt? That because of the serious balance-of-payments deficit, the spiraling cost of the war, the need for greater welfare programs, etc., etc., the nation cannot afford to pay this money back at this time! Amazing.

Why, we're spending more than $86,000 on stupid research projects. The Pentagon, for instance, is squandering $34 million on "social studies" such as a probe of "witchcraft, sorcery, magic and other psychological phenomena in the Congo" and an investigation into the "upper limits of safety for primaquine in sensitive Italians."

And the House Judiciary Committee says we can't afford to pay the Ross-Horner family $86,000 on a legitimate debt almost 200 years old. Maybe the Ross-Horners will get their money in another 200 years, when the pound is worth a quarter and the dollar is worth three cents. I say Mrs. Horner is being ignored because her claim is too small.

If she compounded the interest on $80,000 at, say, 6 percent since 1775, the government would owe her, roughly, $184 million. Congress is accustomed to dealing in sums such as that and probably would appropriate it without a moment's hesitation.

The TV Emmy awards show was so bad, it should have given one to itself — for dullness.

Harris Survey

Kennedy reduces advantage constructed by Humphrey

By LOUIS HARRIS

Despite the primary election victories of Sen. Robert Kennedy in Indiana and Nebraska, Vice President Hubert Humphrey still is the preferred nationwide choice of Democrats for their party's nomination for president. However, on the strength of his primary wins, Kennedy has cut Humphrey's lead from an 11-point margin before Indiana to a four-point lead today.

A special nationwide Harris Survey immediately following the Nebraska primary shows this trend in the three-way contest for the Democratic nomination:

PREFERENCE OF DEMOCRATS

	Mid-May	Late April
	Per Cent	Per Cent
Humphrey	36	38
Kennedy	32	27
McCarthy	24	25
Not sure	8	10

In addition to the three-way test, all Democrats were asked to make a showdown preference between each of the men pitted against each other. In these pairings, Humphrey leads Kennedy 46 to 42 per cent; Kennedy leads McCarthy 46 to 39 per cent, and Humphrey is ahead of McCarthy 49 to 37 per cent. These separate tests, therefore, bear out the overall order of preference among Democrats at the halfway mark in the primary election contests.

This latest survey shows that Sen. Kennedy's wins in the primaries are making a positive impression among the rank and file of voters. The number who feel that he is "an inspiration to a new generation in politics" has risen from 48 to 55 per cent nationwide. By the same token, the criticism that he is "trying to get elected on the memory of his brother, John F. Kennedy, and that is wrong," has diminished from 57 to 48 per cent.

However, by 55 to 31 per cent, a majority of the public does not feel that Kennedy's victories in the primaries "prove that he can get elected in November." And by 45 to 38 per cent voters believe that Kennedy is "trying to buy the Democratic nomination."

Each voter in the national cross section was asked:

"Let me read you some statements some people have made about Sen. Robert Kennedy. For each, tell me if you tend to agree or disagree."

Startling voters

LOS ANGELES—Cross currents of voter opinion surfacing just before the California primary show why none of the Republican or Democratic candidates is likely to get a lock on the nomination before the conventions.

In this biggest state of the Union, swelled by six million new residents from all over the United States in the past 10 years, voter wishes as reflected in all the polls reveal two things which cast large doubt on what the party conventions will do when all the evidence is in.

What comes out is startling and puts the front-runners in the primaries in a shaky position. It is this:

1—Most California Republicans want to nominate Richard Nixon but most California voters want to vote for Nelson Rockefeller in November and say they would do so if given the chance.

2—Most California Democrats favor Sen. Robert Kennedy over Sen. Eugene McCarthy for the nomination, but also show they would rather vote for Vice President Humphrey or McCarthy in November and would vote more solidly for either one than they would for Kennedy.

These findings emerge from putting together all the recent reports of the two highly respected polling agencies in California, the State Poll and the Field Poll, each of which has a long record of reliability. Here are the specifics:

Strongest nominee

Rockefeller proves the strongest nominee to head the Republican ticket in California against any Democrat. He defeats them all in this state, Humphrey by 13 per cent, McCarthy by 12 per cent, Kennedy by a massive 20 per cent. Rocky gets almost as many Republican votes as Nixon but draws nearly twice as many Democratic votes to his side as Nixon.

Kennedy proves the weakest Democratic nominee in the response of the voters of California, a state where Democrats and independents predominate. While Rockefeller defeats all three of the Democratic potentials, Kennedy alone loses to Nixon. He loses narrowly—by two per cent — but McCarthy defeats Nixon by eight per cent and Humphrey defeats him by six per cent.

California's own governor, Ronald Reagan, loses overwhelmingly in his own state to every Democratic candidate—to McCarthy by 35 per

(X — Not asked in April survey)

It is apparent from these results that Sen. Kennedy evokes deeply emotional feelings among the electorate, both pro and con. Surveys of the primary states showed that when he campaigns in person, the prevailing view of him is more favorable. The cumulative impact of his victories to date leave him somewhat behind his standings when he first entered the race, but better than the low point he reached just prior to Indiana.

A comparison of Humphrey and Kennedy strength reveals sharp differences in their current patterns of appeal. Kennedy does well with voters on the West Coast (where he has been campaigning), Negroes, low-income voters, women, young people and the less-well-educated. Humphrey's strength is in the East, among suburbanites, with older voters and among affluent voters. Sen. McCarthy still has a rather substantial following among the young and the college-educated.

The pattern of support for Humphrey and Kennedy is similar both within the Democratic Party and among the electorate as a whole. But within the Democratic Party there are higher proportions of the so-called "gut" or traditional lower-income vote. Therefore, Sen. Kennedy is on his strongest ground when campaigning in the primaries. His problems multiply when he has to compete for the votes of independents and Republicans.

However, Kennedy has demonstrated that he can gain momentum from primaries and improve his standing among all voters to the point of edging out Richard Nixon today. But he must continue to win the primaries to keep his momentum going, and there are still three to go.

cent, to Humphrey by 33 per cent, and to Kennedy by 17 per cent.

McCarthy and Humphrey run nearly twice as strong against Reagan as Kennedy does. This is not in itself a reflection on Reagan as governor. Californians continue to give Reagan strong approval as governor but, either because they want to keep him as governor or feel he is not adequately prepared for the White House, only eight per cent favor his nomination for President.

The inconsistency of the way the Democrats and to some extent the Republicans vote in the primaries across the nation and the way the voters say they would like to vote in the election in November is sharply pointed up here, in California.

Private polls show that Nixon would easily win here, even against unfavorable son Reagan, but when Rockefeller is put to the voters in a trial heat for President against a Democrat, they vote more for Rocky than they do for Nixon.

The same with the Democrats. The polls now show that 31 per cent of California Democrats favor Kennedy; 28 per cent want Humphrey and 15 choose McCarthy. But in trial heats against Republican opponents, McCarthy outpolls them all; Humphrey next.

These California findings approximately parallel the results of the national polls, except for McCarthy who does not fare as well nationally.

They underline the weakness of the primaries in which two popular candidates, Rockefeller and Humphrey, are absent. They force the politicians of both parties to rely inordinately on the polls because the primaries are so inadequate.

But after peeking at Actors Equity demands for actors next season it may soar to $810,000.

The portentously analyzed "visit" of Nelson Rockefeller with Ronald Reagan really went this way: Hocky telephoned Reagan who was asleep with orders not to disturb; Gov. Rockefeller went 'round and simply waited until Reagan got up; the latter's backers (who believe the photos and accounts hurt their hero) told us, "Hocky ambushed him" . . . Hope Hampton, pushing 70 and who knows from which side, and Tony Carlisle, pushing 35, were a picture no artist, save maybe Daumier, could have painted at the Chardas.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

From the looks of the family fare page today, you'd think all the enterprising girls lived in the Slate Belt area and Monroe County was raising a bunch of spinsters. This is not so.

We have our share of pretty brides, but in the Slate Belt they're better trained in getting their pictures and stories in before the wedding when the news is news. Hard as I try, the local girls go trotting off on their honeymoons with the wedding form in their luggage or wait until they get back to choose just the picture they want, and barely beat the two-week deadline.

The problem is that, getting married only once, the lectures I give this month's brides are lost on the next month's. But with June weddings coming up, it seems worth trying again!

Since you know the man you are marrying, the attendants and what they will wear, have your bridal portrait taken as soon as you get your wedding gown, make out the wedding form, and send it in before the last minute rush.

And now, since my disposition is definitely warped after two weeks of rain, I'll also get some other pet gripes aired: Notices of meetings mailed the day before which I get the day after the meeting has been held; using a woman's Christian name instead of her husband's, whether wife or widow; and trying to get everybody in a picture.

Other than that you're all pretty wonderful—or will be when the sun comes out, the rush of meetings die down and I find myself scrounging for news instead of fighting for space for the stories I have. And that time will come next week with the post-Memorial Day slump, when I can't afford to lecture anybody.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and attended by her cousin, Miss Carmella Farole of Roseto as maid of honor, and by Miss Carol Abruzzese of Pen Argyl, also a cousin of the bride and Mrs. Brenda Rance of Easton, as bridesmaids.

Erma Bombeck

Temple, not home

I feel sorry for your children and your poor husband," the letter began. You and your lived-in-house; I have never had a basketball in my bathroom in my life. How can you exist in such clutter?

This letter was from a woman in the East who took exception to a recent column of mine describing my lived-in-house. I answered her, "It isn't easy. I take Dramamine. Incidentally, where do you keep your basketball?"

She was not the only home-gear woman who wrote, however, deploring the domestic drop-out. They all looked upon my breed as a cross between Ma Kettle and Phyllis Diller who sits around in a summer cabin atmosphere smoking cigarettes and swatting flies.

Very frankly, I have some feeling about the home-gear housewife. I respect her. I stand in awe of her. But I really don't understand her.

I don't understand women who cover their sofas with blankets and end up with a clear vinyl piece of plastic to protect the chenille spread.

I don't understand women who have perfectly lovely homes and herd their guests through their lovely living rooms down into the basement to be entertained in a decor which I can describe only as early hot water heater.

I don't understand women who leave the cellophane on their lampshades and the "DO NOT REMOVE TAGS UNDER PENALTY" tags on their pillows. (Go crazy; rip'em off and dare the police department to arrest you.)

I don't understand women who defrost their refrigerators once a week. I defrost mine every year and a half whether it needs it or not.

I don't understand women who are housebound by hard and fast rigid routines of washing on Mondays, ironing on Tuesdays, baking on Wednesdays, cleaning on Thursdays and shopping on Fridays. You could get so regimented you'd have to schedule your headaches.

I don't understand women who become annoyed when their children disturb their antiseptic houses for things like eating and sleeping. Or use children as an excuse for a plastic existence in a synthetic world.

A home is a gathering place for a family. Of course, there should be some respect for it and it should be reasonably clean and picked up. But a place where you take your shoes off before you enter...burn incense...and have no basketballs in the bathroom...honey, that's a temple, not a home.

Ann Landers

Stationary snowdrift

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting pretty sick of your pal answers. They are beginning to sound as if you crank them out of a machine. I refer specifically to your replies to husbands who complain about iceberg wives.

My wife has been a stationary snowdrift from the day we married. For 13 years I have put up with her excuses and "duty" expressions of marital "bliss." I first started to kid her about finding satisfaction elsewhere if she didn't warm up. Later I stopped kidding and made the threat in earnest. Her answer was, "I don't care what you do so long as you don't bother ME."

I am 35. My wife is 33. This is too young to dry up and blow away. She is an excellent mother, a fine housekeeper, a gracious hostess and active in the League of Women Voters, but she is more than cold — she's frozen.

Be practical and give me an answer that does more than take up two inches of newspaper space.

STARVATION DIET

Dear S. D.: Many are cold but few are frozen. Your wife is probably the product of a guilt-ridden, inhibited mother who believed all men were beasts because that's what HER mother told her.

You say your wife is an iceberg. This is an apt description in more ways than one. Four-fifths of an iceberg is below the surface. Your job is to get acquainted with the whole woman.

Your iceberg — I mean your wife — should talk to her doctor. She is not living up to her responsibilities to you. Furthermore, she is cheating herself. You should see a doctor, too. A French philosopher once said, "There are no cold women — only clumsy men."

Dear Ann Landers: I have a large home and have taken in six working girls to room and board with me. They are all fine women and I would thoroughly enjoy our evening meal if it weren't for my husband.

Henry is the first one at the table. The minute he sits down he starts to shove the bread in his mouth. If there's a relish tray on the table he eats all the olives immediately. The pickles he inhales.

I bring the vegetable dish in first and Henry helps himself. By the time I bring in the meat he is on his second helping of vegetables.

I've told him it is rude to act like he is starving to death. He insists the house is his as much as it is mine and I have no right to tell him how to eat.

Naturally I would never correct him in front of the women but I am embarrassed by his behavior. What can I do about it?

MARRIED TO A HOG

Dear Married: The solution is so simple I'm surprised you haven't thought of it.

Don't put food on the table until everyone is seated — not even bread, and certainly no olives or pickles. Buy a large platter and serve the meat and vegetables together. It's easy to outfox a hog if you use your head.

Confidential to Dying To Know: Don't die. It won't help. I never divulge the identity of those who write to me.

Give in or lose him... when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking and Petting — What Are The Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Time limit set on land transaction

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Under terms of legislation signed into law by Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, a time limit of one year has been established during which second class townships, as in the case of the 16 in Monroe County, must be paid by a borough or city for the costs or value of improvements to land annexed from the township by the borough or city.

Previously no such time limit existed, the law simply stating that whenever boundaries of such second class townships have been altered and annexed by a borough or a city, "the township shall be paid" under these three provisions (which also carry over into the new law):

(1) — The value of all roads improved by the township within five years; (2) — The cost of sewer systems constructed by the township within fifteen years; and (3) — The value of public buildings and improvements other than roads and sewers.

Another new act signed by the Governor and affecting Monroe County's second class townships further provides for the cost of removing nuisances — such as the accumulation of garbage and rubbish, the storage of abandoned or junked automobiles "and the carrying on of any offensive manufacture or business."

Previously the township was merely authorized to collect the cost of such removal, together with such penalty as may be prescribed by ordinance from the owner by summary proceedings, whereas the new statutes now also provides: "or in the manner provided for the collection of municipal claims or by any action assumpt without the filing of a claim."

These laws also apply to the 11 second class townships in Pike County.

East Stroudsburg science students in special pilot program

EAST STROUDSBURG — During the school year at East Stroudsburg Junior-Senior High School, a group of eighth grade science students participated in a pilot program in physical science called The Introductory Physical Science (IPS) Program.

IPS is a modern approach to physical science where the student develops his ideas by experimentation and discussion of his experiments with his class. The emphasis is on the student observing events and drawing valid conclusions.

The program is aimed at the development of a model for the atom, based on student experimentations with various forms of matter, such as solid, liquid, gaseous states, radioactive materials, expansion and contractions of all types of materials, measurements and degree of accuracy, calibration of instruments (a balance, thermometer, etc.) The atomic model as the students develop more complex ideas becomes very descriptive and unique. The program develops for students a sense of understanding the complex atomic structure; for the non-college bound student, this is a must in the future, for the college bound student this is a basis for chemistry and physics which follow in Senior High School. The students have enthusiastically accepted this program to such an extent that they have asked throughout the school year to have Saturday sessions, holiday or inservice day sessions, and after school work. Mr. Person teaches this pilot program and is planning to spend several additional hours each day with the group of students until July 1st.

The students in the group are: Ed Bzik, Gene Dickinson, Steve Fahl, Cathy Robbins, John Sibley, Jim Smith, Keith Snyder, Scott Wimer, Richard Matlock, Shawn Woodhead and David Wyckoff.

The students, because they spend additional time in completing the new program, will advance one year in their science studies. The program will be the ninth grade science course beginning next year at East Stroudsburg High School.

Graduates told of one world town

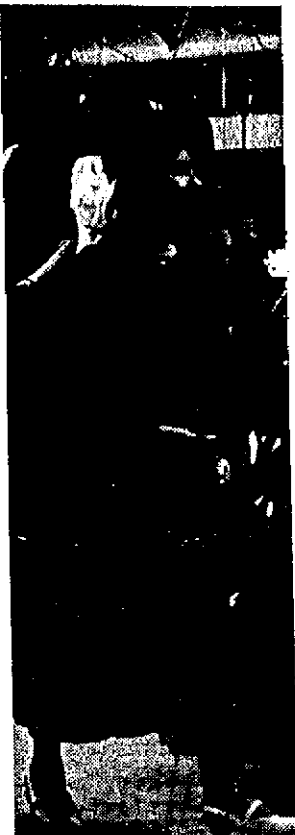

EAST STROUDSBURG — Rep. Richard S. Schweiker stressed time running out and the need for a "new era of politics" when he compared the earth to an "ever shrinking one town world" in his commencement address to a capacity crowd of 3,000 Sunday at East Stroudsburg State College's Koehler Field House.

The Republican Congressman from the 13th Congressional District of Pennsylvania told a perspiring audience of 269 ESSC graduates, friends and relatives, and faculty members that the dynamics of change has forced Russia from a rigid Stalinist era to one where just recently Czechoslovakia enjoyed a "breath of fresh air" in her steady drive for more liberal government policies.

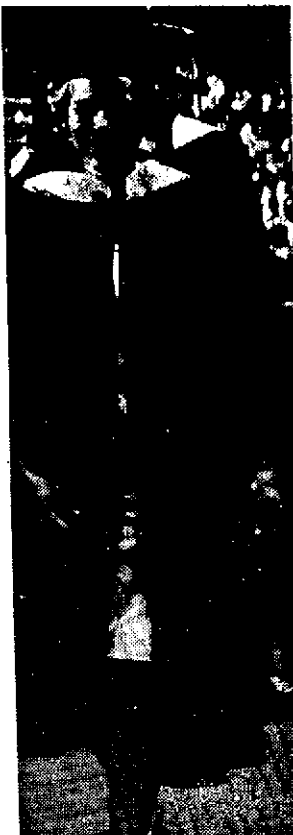

But he warned that this change in tactics has not caught up with Red China even though the struggle for liberal reform within that country continues.

In citing President John F. Kennedy's maxim, "Mankind must put an end to war or war will put an end to mankind," Rep. Schweiker prescribed education as the remedy for the strife and stress in a one town world where out of a given 1,000 population, 60 would be Americans who would take 16 per cent of the town's food supply but who eat 72 per cent above the U.S.'s own food supply.

In this 1,000 population one town world, Schweiker estimated there would be 330 Christians, 303 whites and 697 non-whites, 500 whom have never heard of Christianity and more than 500 who would be aware of Communism. Rep. Schweiker called

Vietnam another potential conflagration and said that he was one of nine house members who offered a de-escalation policy last fall based on a "staged de-escalation" in which the bombing in North Vietnam would be halted north of the 21st parallel for 60 days.

The proposal emphasized five successive steps, from a halt in bombing from the 21st parallel to the 17th in Vietnam, in which time all bombing would cease, providing each successive step would be followed by a similar de-escalated move from North Vietnam.

Schweiker saw a new degree of urgency in a world in which "the time clock is fast running out."

"Time has found us, a new era of politics has struck," Schweiker said in quoting Tom Paine, an English-American humanitarian and author who shaped public opinion before and during the American Revolution.

Schweiker drew on a member of his own family to illustrate where and how the world is going today and what should be done about it.

He told how he had given a plastic globe to his six-year-old son for his birthday. To his son, the globe was security, a mark of personal identification. His son took it to bed and when he fell asleep his father stole into his room and took it out of his hands.

Near the bedroom door he tripped over a rug. Startled, his son woke up and said, "Daddy! What are you doing with my world?"

"We are all responsible for this question," Schweiker told the audience. "The answer is dependent on freedom surviving into the 21st century."

Zellner's final concert 'brings down house'

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — It was a difficult, professional performance for a symphonic band.

But the East Stroudsburg High School Band directed by Robert Zellner stirred its audience with definitive sounds in music which ranged from the tempest and grandiose to the most tender emotion, during a concert Saturday night in the school auditorium.

For band director Zellner it was his final official stand with his band after 12 years with the East Stroudsburg music students.

"It was an excellent concert, just great and I was really thrilled with the farewell performance of the band members," Zellner said of the concert.

The 35-year-old band director has resigned to teach on the college level at Gettysburg College in September. At numerous intervals during the concert, Zellner's performance was praised with thunderous applause.

Members of the audience and the band in the concluding selection of "Stars and Stripes Forever" were overcome with emotions combined with smiles and tears and the unanimous impressions of the concert were "fantastic."

Ernest Farmer of the Shawnee Press, a school director, said the band had played some very difficult pieces for high school bands, especially Morton Gould's "American Salute."

Zellner paid tribute to almost the entire audience as he singled out in recognition the band mothers and fathers, former band members, school personnel, departing seniors of the band, and retiring music director Clement Wiedman.

In recognition of his 12 years with the school band, the Band Mothers Assn. presented him with a gold plaque and the band members gave him a Kodak movie projector.

Russell Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bush received the Barbara Patzinger Memorial Award as the "outstanding musician of the year." Bush performed as trumpet soloist for "Southern Cross."

Molly Wunder, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William Wunder, received the Band Mothers Assn. Scholarship Award.

2,300 hike to Sunfish

SUNFISH POND — Approximately 2,300 persons participated in the "Save Sunfish Pond Pilgrimage" over the weekend.

Sponsored by the Lenni Lenape League and the Sierra Club, about 900 persons participated in the hike Saturday and 1,400 on Sunday.

Sunfish Pond, located about four miles from Delaware Water Gap, is a 44 acre glacier lake on Kittatinny Ridge.

The Lenni Lenape League and the Sierra Club are opposing the proposal of erecting a hydroelectric storage facility at the lake. New Jersey utility companies are proposing the facility in conjunction with the Tocks Island Reservoir.

Schweiker views American unrest

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Rep. Richard S. Schweiker cast a jaundiced eye from a top heavy U.S. bureaucracy to the American social fabric worn thin by discord and dissent when he said, "America is entering its most critical era since the Civil War."

In an interview after the Republican Congressman's commencement address at East Stroudsburg State College, Schweiker said that President Johnson just might decide to run but based his theory on a skyscraper "if."

"I believe the President was sincere when he said he was not going to run again but I'm not so sure about his basic underlying motivation," Schweiker said.

"It might just hinge on a big if. If the Paris peace talks on Vietnam are productive, the Democratic Convention could very well urge him to reverse his position. He would be caught in a draft, the door would be open, and he might like that position."

Schweiker laid the onus on the North Vietnamese in the current Paris peace talks.

"This is the critical period right now," Schweiker said. "For both sides. They want us to halt all bombing. If they show some concrete interim step, the talks might bear fruit, the fruit of peace."

Schweiker is the Republican candidate who will oppose U.S. Sen. Joseph Clark in November.

Schweiker sees the cause of the student unrest as a basic dissatisfaction with the establishment.

"And this is just one symptom of our current malaise," he said. "There's a restless groping in our people. They don't understand why the students are rebelling. There's a pronounced discord in our society today, a pulling not only of the heart and purse strings but of the nerve fibres and endings."

"Our country needs a broader perspective of social awareness, a wider participation in tax sharing plans in which revenues should be returned with expert handling to state and local government channels with proper federal guidelines."

Bangor scores three in 7th to nip Cavs

BANGOR — Bangor and Hometown met at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Copley for the Lehigh-Northampton League championship.

The Slaters finished their regular season Saturday with a 7-6 win over East Stroudsburg on the strength of a three-run rally in the bottom of the seventh.

Bangor (12-0 overall and 10-0 in the L-NZ) started its rally with one out as Brad Farina doubled. After John LaValva walked, Cav starter Dave Hopsper was replaced by Al Lessig.

But the usually dependable Lessig walked Al Lobb and Bryce Onjak to force in one run and then gave up a two-run single to Dale Harding to end the game.

East Stroudsburg started out as if it would have an easy win scoring five times in the first two innings. But Brian Stenlake took over the pitching in the second inning and allowed only one more run to the Cavs.

Eastburg scored three times in the first on two errors and singles by Steve Nauman and Dave Darr. Darr's hit drove in two runs.

Banks hits pair; Cubs trip Giants

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Banks, Chicago's 37-year-old marvel, smashed two home runs Sunday, powering the Cubs to a 4-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Banks' first homer—a two-run blow—came in the opening inning and featured a three-run uprising against southpaw Mike McCormick.

Banks' eighth homer of the season and the 450th of his career came in the fourth with the bases empty.

Banks also swept past one of the oldest Cub records on the books, the 4,149 total bases accumulated by Cap Anson before the turn of the century.

Bill Hands benefitted from Banks' shugging and boosted his record to 5-2, stopping the Giants on four hits. Hands gave up a first inning single to Ty Cline and then didn't allow another hit until the seventh, when Dave Marshall singled.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pittsburgh and Cincinnati played an 8-8 tie Sunday in a game ended by rain after seven innings.

The Pirates scored a run in the eighth, breaking the tie on a double by Willie Stargell and a single by Roberto Clemente, but it was erased by the rain.

Bellis, Lobb win state titles

UNIVERSITY PARK — Bangor's Kim Bellis and Pen Argyl's Steve Lobb accounted for three PIAA track and field championships Saturday.

Bellis was the big news as he captured both the class B triple and long jump, the former a new school record. Bellis jumped 44 feet, 9 1/2 inches in the triple jump and 22 feet, 3 1/2 inches in the long jump.

Lobb, who didn't compete in hurdle races simply because the Knights don't run them during the regular season, pulled a surprise by taking the 180-yard low hurdles in the fine time of 19.6 seconds.

Northampton's Joe Steffie was the District's lone class A winner as he cleared 13 feet, six inches in the pole vault.

In other events Bangor's representatives gained fifth place in the mile relay in covering the distance in 3:28.5. The team was composed of Rodger Black, Terry Sweet, Fred Whitmore and Frank Scagliotta. The 880 relay team placed sixth, just out of the money. It was composed of Bellis, Sweet, Whitmore and Scagliotta. They covered the distance in 1:32.2.

Jeff Swope, a sophomore, placed sixth in the discus, also out of the money, and Rodger Black also registered a sixth in the 880 yard run, missing the place selection.

Ernie Banks of the Cubs steps on home plate to score the 450th home run of his career to make him the 11th player in major league history to hit 450 homers. He got the hit off Giants' Mike McCormick in the 4th inning of the game Sunday. At left is Giants' catcher Dick Dietz and Cubs' batboy. Cubs won game, 4-2 (UPI Telephoto)

The bidding:
North East South West
3♣ 3♠ 4♠ 5♠
6♣ Dble 6NT 5♠
Pass Dble

Opening lead—four of spades.
This hand occurred in the 1965 European women's championship during the match between Italy and Spain. The bidding is peculiar even if we grant the three club bid was conventional and showed a long and strong diamond suit.

On that basis, it would seem that the Spanish South should have bid either three notrump or four diamonds over three spades, instead of cuebidding the spades. The six notrump bid by South likewise appears doubtful, since a slam could hardly be made in notrump if it could not also be made in diamonds.

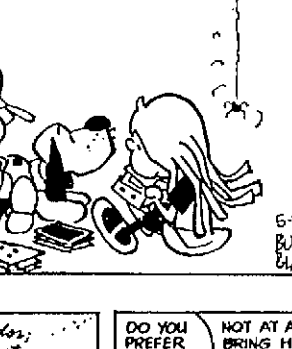

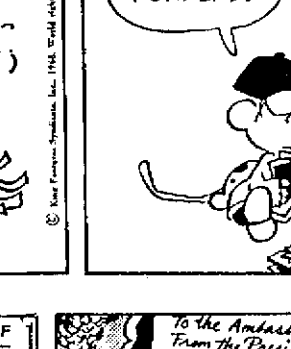

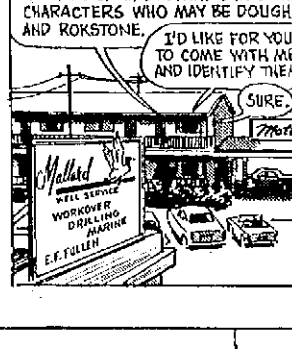

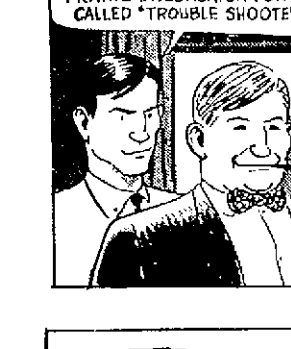

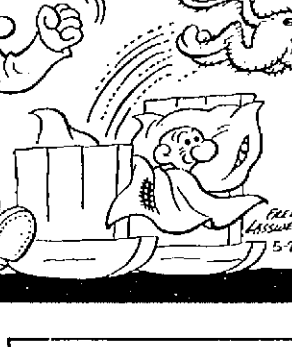

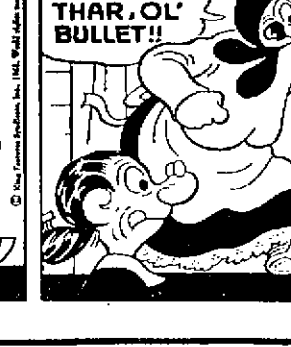

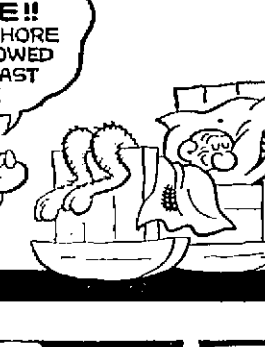

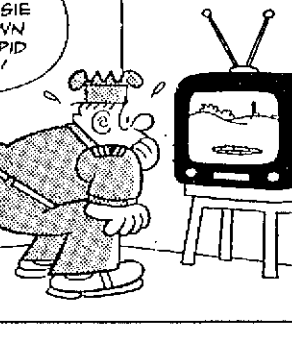

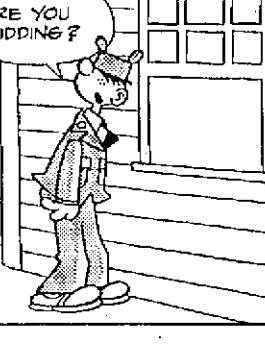

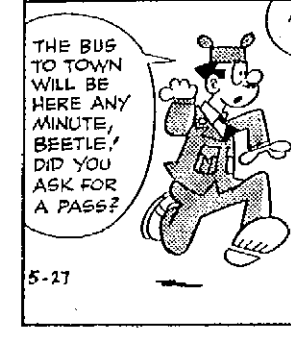

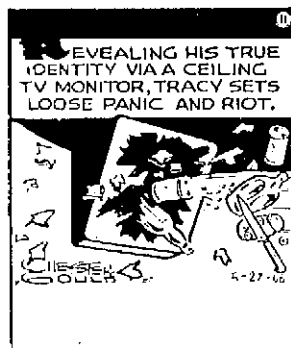

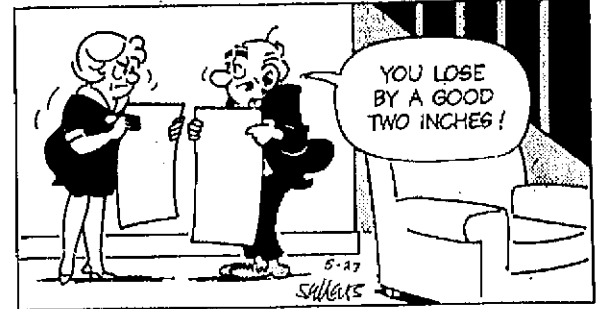

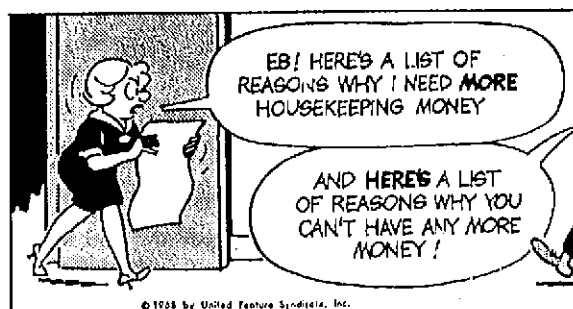

Declarer won the spade lead with the queen and cashed dummy's diamonds but then had to go down one. East's last four cards were the K-Q of hearts and the K-Q of clubs, which were bound to produce two defensive tricks.

However South could have made six notrump had she cashed the ace of spades before running the diamonds. The position with four tricks remaining would then have been:

North
♠ K J
♥ 2
♦ 4
♣ 4

South
♠ 10 9
♥ A J
♦ 8 3
♣ A J 8 6 2

When dummy leads the last diamond, East cannot discard safely. If she discards a heart, declarer discards a club and leads a heart; if she discards a club, declarer discards a heart and cashes the A-J of clubs. Either way, South makes a six notrump. Strangely enough, the board turned out to be an exact tie. At the second table, the Italian North-South pair arrived at six diamonds doubled with North the declarer, and east led the jack of spades to eventually defeat the contract one trick.

Exclusive-with-ASPRO Features For Summers of Care-Free Enjoyment

Your Assurance of Quality
The ASPRO Seal

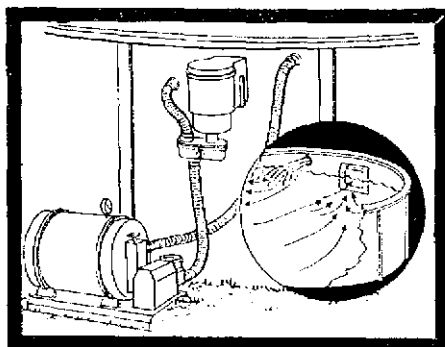

Vari. Deep Expandable Depth Liner

Here is the great new step forward in pool technology making it possible for your pool to "grow" with your family, enabling your pool to be deepened from four feet to eight feet.

Through-the-Wall Filtration with Auto-Kleen System

All Sierra pools equipped with facilities for through-the-wall filtration, a Sierra exclusive that makes cleaning, filtering and vacuuming a simple, automatic procedure. The Auto-Kleen System is the ultimate in neat, compact safe installations, generally found only in expensive in-ground pools.

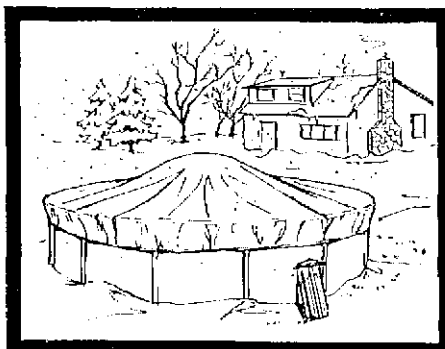

Automatic 7 Day Chlorination

ASPRO'S answer to the daily chore of chlorinating your pool. Auto-Clor unit holds a week's supply of Superstix... dispenses accurate hourly, daily requirement for stabilized chlorination. For a sparkling drinking water pure pool, simply add amazing Superstix once a week.

Winterizing Program

ASPRO's research has made it possible to leave pools up and filled year-round. Eliminates bother of taking down pool every Fall. Safe, labor-saving, simple.

Quality and Service

All Sierra products bear the seal of approval of the American Swimming Pool Research Organization (ASPRO). This means that exhaustive testing and thorough inspection back every product, and equally important, that ASPRO standards of pool professionalism in service and maintenance have been met by your Sierra pool specialist.

Every family deserves the fun of their own backyard pool.

The American Swimming Pool Research Organization (ASPRO) was formed to assure carefree enjoyment through superb products and modern pool technology.

ASPRO makes certain your pool and pool equipment is the finest money can buy, by imposing strict requirements on every supplier. ASPRO inspects thoroughly, and tests exhaustively, to make sure your pool and equipment, regardless of price, gives you the very best in lasting quality. Then, and only then, do they grant any pool product the ASPRO Seal of Quality.

Dealing with pool professionals, indeed—pool perfectionists, guarantees you a valuable investment and superlative, authoritative service.
